

Are you copying?

COPY RIGHT
LICENSING
NEW ZEALAND

Let's do the right thing

Are you copying content from books, journals, newspapers* or magazines?

Your organisation holds a copyright licence that makes compliance quick and simple. It gives permission for you to COPY, SCAN and SHARE copyright protected materials with your students.

Here's an overview of what's covered under your copyright licence.

What material can you copy?

- Material that originates from a printed book, journal, magazine or newspaper* (sometimes called hard copies)
- A scanned or digital copy of an original printed version

How much can you copy?

- Up to 10% or one chapter of a book (whichever is greater, including pictures and graphs)
- 15 pages from books of short stories and poetry
- Complete magazine and journal articles (one per issue, more if on the same subject)
- Local and overseas newspaper* articles (five per issue, from online or hard copy)

How can you share this material with students?

- Handouts, class notes and lecturer compiled worksheets (printed and digital)
- Interactive whiteboards and screens
- Password protected intranet sites (eg. student portals)
- Email

Questions?

For in-depth answers for all your copyright questions, visit our Knowledge Base: knowledgebase.copyright.co.nz

For more information, visit: www.copyright.co.nz

Adam Dudding
Author and journalist

